Emerging Relationships Brings Healthy Relationship Education to Tweens!

Healthy relationship skills are the foundation for safety, stability, and well-being. Starting to teach these skills to youth before adolescence prepares them to say yes to their goals and no to the risky behaviors that can get in the way of achieving those goals! Emerging Relationships is an all-new, research-based curriculum from The Dibble Institute that uses a positive youth development framework to reach fifth and sixth graders with developmentally appropriate healthy relationships content. In six lessons, they will learn skills to enhance their understanding of themselves and to contribute to healthy friendships with their peers.

Dibble Movie Guides

The Dibble Institute’s helpful movie guides were featured in Phyllis Fagell’s book, Middle School Matters.

“The media can be detrimental, but parents can use it to their advantage. If you watch romantic comedies with your child, you can broach relationship issues without delving into the deeply personal. A misogynistic song or a young adult novel can prompt discussion about love and respect. (If you’re looking for suggestions, the Dibble Institute, which helps teens learn healthy relationship skills, provides parents with guided questions to encourage critical thinking about a number of popular teen movies; you can find them online at dibbleinstitute.org/free-resources/movie-guides/)”

Interest in Unpublished Resources About Relationship Education

Child Trends is conducting a systematic review to identify core components of relationship education programming. The project, Core Components of Relationship Education is being carried out under a contract with the Office of Planning, Research, and Evaluation, with funding from the Office of Family Assistance.

To ensure their review draws upon the learnings from unpublished research, not just published research, Child Trends is interested in information about any unpublished research related to relationship education programs.

Childhood Bullying Linked to Distrust, Mental Health Issues in Adolescence

Childhood bullying was linked to distrust as a teenager and mental health issues in late adolescence according to research. Teenagers who reported a distrust of others because of childhood bullying were much more likely to have significant mental health problems into adulthood compared with their peers.

Hidden Brain: Are You Listening?

Have you ever sat across from your spouse, colleague or friend and realized that while they may be hearing what you're saying, they aren't actually listening? Poor listening they may be hearing what you're saying, they aren't actually listening: Poor listening can lead to arguments, hurt feelings, and fractured relationships. But the good news is that active, thoughtful listening can profoundly benefit both people in the conversation. Psychologist Guy Itzchakov helps us understand where interactions go awry, and how to become a more attentive listener.

Centering Youth Voice: Using Peer Facilitators in Relationship Education to Engage and Empower Youth

Join Kelley Lockett and Daiya Thompson of the Louisville YMCA as they discuss lessons learned over the last two years of implementing Love Notes in Teen Vibe Camps using peer facilitators.

Teen Vibe Camps, offer a transformative blend of summer camp nostalgia and comprehensive curriculum sessions. Through activities like podcasting, music, and social media graphics, these camps foster a sense of community and belonging. Statistical evidence showcases significant shifts in positive identity markers among attendees, particularly among LGBTQ+ youth, who form trusted adult connections and show higher program engagement.

Complementing this approach is an innovative Peer Facilitator model, which introduces youth as Love Notes facilitators. Peer facilitators excel in building trust, fostering community, and encouraging participation outscoring adult facilitators in quality observation scores. Through a dual-track system involving collaboration with local high schools and self-selection from camp attendees, peer facilitators are trained in the curriculum as well as in Positive Youth Development, Social Justice Youth Development, Trauma-Informed Care, and facilitation techniques. Testimonials highlight the profound personal growth experienced by peer facilitators.

Objectives: Participants will be able to:

- Understand the Teen Vibe Camps model and its impact on fostering positive identity development and community engagement among youth, particularly vulnerable populations such as LGBTQ+ youth.
- Explore the Peer Facilitator (PF) model as an innovative approach to implementing Love Notes, focusing on the benefits of peer-led facilitation in building trust, rapport, and participation among youth participants.
- Acquire practical skills and resources for implementing aspects of both the Teen Vibe Camps and PF models within participants' own organizations, taking into account the organizational strengths and addressing potential challenges in program execution.

organizational strengths and addressing potential challenges in program execution.

Presenter: Kelley Luckett and Daiya Thompson

Who should attend: Grant managers and coordinators who want to increase their impact through youth voice, relationship skills facilitators using TPP, SRA, and HM funding, community organizations who want to reach more youth, youth professionals interested in peer programming, anyone who seeks to reach young people in innovative ways.

Basic Center Program

Application due date: June 7, 2024

The primary purpose of BCP is to provide temporary, emergency shelter and counseling services to youth less than 18 years of age. We award community-based organizations funding to operate short-term shelters (including group home care and host family homes) and provide counseling services to youth who have run away or are experiencing homelessness or housing instability and who are not already receiving services from the child welfare or juvenile justice systems.

Our goal is to establish and strengthen community-based projects that meet the immediate needs of youth who have left home due to family conflict or other crisis and youth experiencing or at risk of experiencing homelessness.

Street Outreach Program

Application due date: June 7, 2024

The primary purpose of SOP is to provide outreach, education, services, and referrals to help youth who have left home due to family conflict or other crisis, youth who are experiencing homelessness, and youth living on the street under the age of 22 leave the streets.

Our goal is to build relationships between street outreach workers and eligible youth to move them into safe and stable housing or emergency shelter and prepare them for independence.
